CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

How This...Great Transportation System is speeding the growth of a nation.

Just as the development of the western Empire of the United States followed the path of the iron horse, so Canada is expanding hand in hand with her great railways.

Canadian National spreads its web of shining rails throughout Canada's vast agricultural and wheat-raising areas—its boundless cattle lands—its throbbing industrial centres—its great lumber, pulpwood and mineral developments. It connects these industries with every important city and seaport in Canada and is the great artery through which Canadian products reach the markets of the world.

Canadian National also serves the many resort sections of Canada. From the Atlantic seacoast of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, through the lake and forest regions of Quebec and Ontario, across the prairie provinces to the Canadian Rockies and the Pacific, a thousand and one delightful vacation lands are reached by this great railway system.

Canadian National is more than a great railway. The scope of its service includes hotels in many of Canada's principal cities and summer resorts—steamships sailing to ports the world over—telegraph service, over 135,000 miles of wire having direct connections with the Western Union Telegraph Company—freight and express service throughout Canada with connections to all parts of the world—radio broadcasting stations across Canada from Moncton to Vancouver.

Harebell and Wild Flax

It's far more interesting to know the Harebell by the name which has made it famous in song and verse. This hardy, slender stemmed specie, with its demure, drooping, violet bell is the "Blue Bells of Scotland." It blooms from June till September.

A slender, dainty plant is the Wild Flax bearing racemes of lovely cerulean flowers.
