How This...Great Transportation System is speeding the growth of a nation.

Just as the development of the western Empire of the United States followed the path of the iron horse, so Canada is expanding hand in hand with her great railways.

Canadian National spreads its web of shining rails throughout Canada's vast agricultural and wheat-raising areas—its boundless cattle lands—its throbbing industrial centres—its great lumber, pulpwood and mineral developments. It connects these industries with every important city and seaport in Canada and is the great artery through which Canadian products reach the markets of the world.

Canadian National also serves the many resort sections of Canada. From the Atlantic seacoast of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, through the lake and forest regions of Quebec and Ontario, across the prairie provinces to the Canadian Rockies and the Pacific, a thousand and one delightful vacation lands are reached by this great railway system.

Canadian National is more than a great railway. The scope of its service includes hotels in many of Canada's principal cities and summer resorts—steamships sailing to ports the world over—telegraph service, over 135,000 miles of wire having direct connections with the Western Union Telegraph Company—freight and express service throughout Canada with connections to all parts of the world—radio broadcasting stations across Canada from Moncton to Vancouver.

Dog Tooth Violet

Since the Indian Paint Brush takes its nourishment by fastening on the roots of other plants, it is really a parasite. The tips of the leaves surrounding the flower are scarlet as though dipped in a pot of red paint, which gives to this flower its other name—Scarlet Painted Cup.

The Dog Tooth Violet, known also as Yellow Adder's Tongue, is found in the spring beside woodland brooks. The name Violet is a misnomer and the names Trout Lily or Fawn Lily often applied locally are far more appropriate.
