NOTE:—In addition to the trips described above, there are many other interesting long and short trips which can be planned to suit the requirements of visitors to Jasper.

MALIGNE LAKE

Of the almost bewildering array of wonderful places in Jasper National Park, Maligne Lake affords much that is interesting to tourists who appreciate such things.

Maligne Chalet, commanding a full view of Maligne Lake, is situated on a low plateau at the outlet. Before the Chalet and extending in a southeasterly direction for seventeen miles, with a breadth varying from two hundred yards to two miles and possessing some fifty miles of shore line, lies the largest glacial-fed lake in the Canadian Rockies.

Beginning with Mount Samson, (the jagged peak, ten thousand feet high, which faces the Chalet on the left) the altitude of the peaks forming the Maligne group, (Mounts Charlton, Unwin, Warren, Mary Vaux and Maligne) increases until, in Mount Brazeau, a height of twelve thousand two hundred and fifty feet is reached—one thousand feet higher than Mount Edith Cavell and almost as high as Mount Robson itself.

The mountains rise precipitously from the lake and are heavily laden with snow and ice. At the southwest end of the lake, farthest from the Chalet, lies a considerable snowfield, and leading in a southerly direction towards the Brazeau River district, along the western base of Mount Brazeau, is a high, broad snow pass, affording an easy way of access to this very interesting neighborhood. The mountains in the Maligne Lake district afford every opportunity for both ice and rock climbing and many comparatively easy climbs may be undertaken by the amateur.

The mountains, meadows and flowers of the alp-lands will prove of interest to botanist and naturalist alike. Sheep, goat, cariboo, moose and deer frequent these pastures. The Opal Hills, facing the Chalet on the east, provide sheep and goat for the observation of the visitor, while the mountain sides, overlooking the lake and particularly those about the southeast, are used extensively by the mountain goat as a summer pasture.

ACCOMMODATION AT CHALETS

These chalets are under the supervision of the Official Outfitters (Fred Brewster's Rocky Mountain Camps Limited).

Medicine Lake Chalet, elevation 4,500 feet, situated at the upper (south) end of Medicine Lake at the point where the river enters the lake, is a log building containing dining-room, sitting-room and limited sleeping accommodation. Accommodation — ten persons. Side trips to Jacques Lake and Beaver Lake, good fishing. Passenger launch and good fishing canoes maintained on Medicine Lake — see schedule of rates on page 12 on this booklet.

Maligne Lake Chalet — elevation 5,500 feet — situated on Maligne Lake at the outlet to the river, comprises a central building 25' x 40' which contains the living room with big open fireplace, dining-room seating 20 people, and a well-equipped kitchen.

Conducted hiking trips are organized among the guests.

Along the front and on one side there is a spacious screened-in varandah which affords a splendid view up the lake.

Sleeping accommodation is provided in a four-room cabin, canvas houses and tents. The four-room cabin is constructed along the lines of those at Jasper Park Lodge and is similarly furnished; each room contains two single beds. The canvas houses consist of one bedroom, comfortably furnished with two single beds. The tents are floored and walled and contain two single beds.

Complete bath and toilet facilities are provided in a separate building.

Comfortable beds, plain but satisfying meals, cleanliness and courteous attention on the part of the staff in charge guarantee that the trail rider, angler or other visitor will enjoy his stay here.

A most satisfactory hunting district and one easily and quickly reached from Jasper or Mount Robson Parks. The country harbours caribou, big-horn sheep, moose, goat, grizzly and black bear, as well as fur-bearing animals. The guides in this territory are efficient, well-equipped, and thoroughly acquainted with the district.

Enquiries should be addressed to the following outfitters and hunting guides: Fred Brewster, Jasper, Alberta; Donald (Curly) Phillips, Jasper, Alberta; Jack W. Brewster, Jasper, Alberta; and Hargreaves Bros., Mount Robson, British Columbia.

WHAT TO DO AT MOUNT ROBSON

Mount Robson Park—the British Columbia Forest Reserve of 640 square miles, located on the Canadian National Railways just west of Jasper National Park, in the Canadian Rockies — is easily reached by desirable train connections. Complete information in regard to trips outlined may be secured, and reservations and all arrangements made at the Transportation Desk, Jasper Park Lodge.

Mount Robson, 12,972 feet, “Monarch of the Canadian Rockies,” is in a class by itself. Mighty peaks are its courtiers, any of which, if removed from the vicinity of Mount Robson’s tremendous bulk would in themselves be centres of attraction. Mount Whitehorn, 11,101 feet, on the north-west face; Mount Resplendent, 11,171 feet on the north-east face, and numerous other peaks, form the entourage of this monarch.

Berg Lake, 5,500 feet, two miles long and a mile wide, is dotted with icebergs, which are continually breaking away from the Tumbling Glacier, the only one of its kind in the Canadian Rockies. Overlooking this view is Hargraves’ bungalow camp.
