The Magnificent CANADIAN ROCKIES

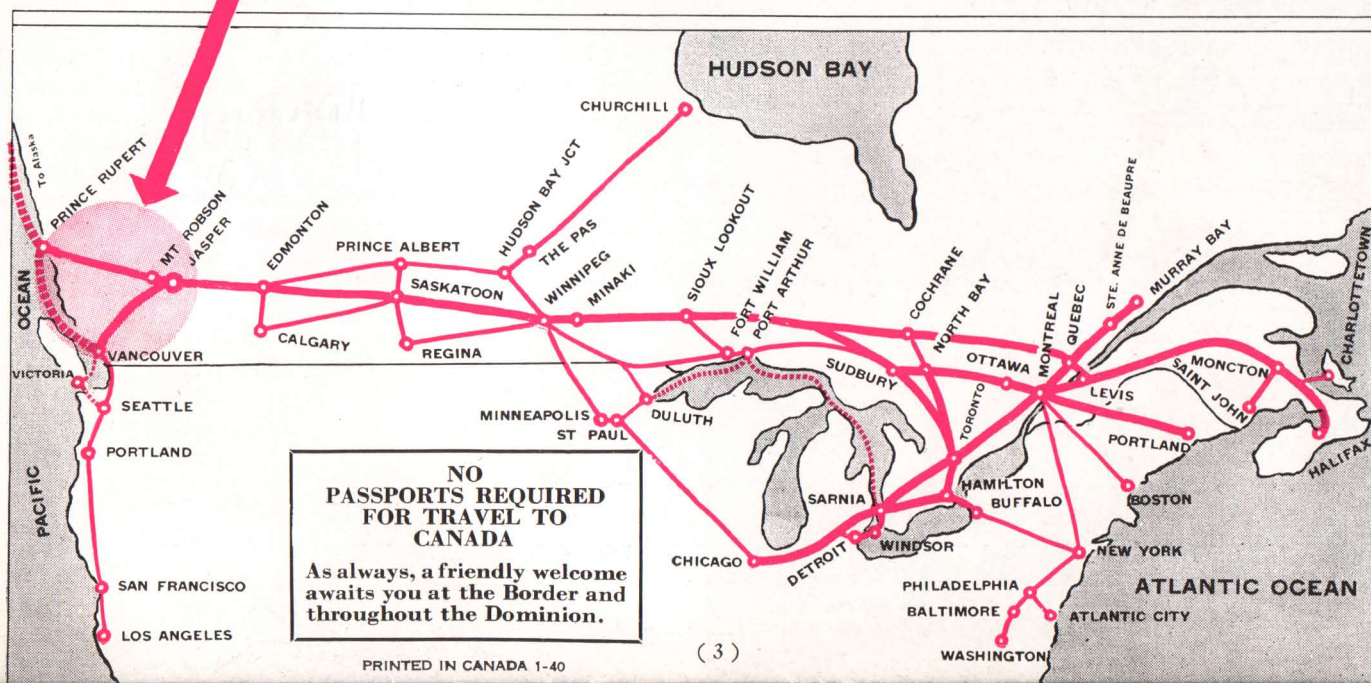

*A superb panorama
of towering mountains,
glaciers, canyons rivers*

graph, is that of Mount Robson, 12,972 feet. Its beauty of form, its magnificent armour of ice and its vast solidity makes Robson supreme among mountain tops.

Extending north from the international boundary for more than 400 miles in British Columbia and the western part of Alberta are the breath-taking Canadian Rockies, marshalled into a phalanx of closely set mountains sweeping on in substantial unity.

Those who have experienced the spell of this region know how inadequately words express its charm; to them come new delights with each recurring visit — delights shared with the new-comer and amplified in the sharing.

In this unspoiled alpine kingdom, hallowed by history, by Indian legend, and by the romance of the fur traders, are tremendous peaks that lift their heads beyond the clouds and black canyons that brace their feet in unimaginable depths; glaciers that creep down from the frozen desolation of alpine heights and the black walls of precipices rising to shut out the very light of day. But these are softened and balanced by luxuriant pine forests; by smiling green valleys "murmurous with trout-filled streams", by the airy veils of silvery waterfalls tumbling against black precipice or green forest and tangling the rainbow in their folds;

by the brilliance of alpine uplands sparkling with millions of flowers, and by innumerable magically tinted lakes. Under a sky, changing from moment to moment and from hour to hour under varying light and drifting purple cloud shadows, these are glorified at sunrise and sunset into almost unearthly beauty and transformed by moonlight into a veritable palace of dreams.

Dominating this magnificent mountain region is the "Triangle Route" of the Canadian National Railways—a 2,000 mile travel trail crossing four mighty mountain ranges by two different routes. A study of the map on the back cover depicting the topography and geography of this complex assemblage of mountain groups will show how apt is the name "Triangle Route". The easterly leg extends from Jasper—America's largest mountain park and one of the great playgrounds of the Continent—through the Yellowhead Pass, past Mount Robson, monarch of the Canadian Rockies, and down beside the roaring gorges of the Thompson and Fraser Rivers to Vancouver. From Vancouver the westerly leg extends northward through the calm waters of the protected Inside Passage. Seaward are caught occasional glimpses of the broad Pacific, while on the landward side lies the Coast Range broken by long tenuous arms or fiords that give access to interesting fishing ports and thriving pulp and paper towns. Eastward from Prince Rupert the train follows the Skeena, "River of Clouds," to the quaint Indian village of Kitwanga, with its fantastic totem poles. A few miles further on passengers view in silent wonder Bulkley Gate through which the river hurls itself, far below. By early morning comes once more the huge, silver crested bulk of Mount Robson and its attendant peaks. Thence the return to Jasper, the Triangle Route completed.

Convenient schedules, comfortable trains and steamers enable the "Triangle Route" to be made in either direction, and starting at any point on the Triangle. Westbound you start at Jasper. Eastbound, you begin at Vancouver. There's a further choice. You can go clockwise or counter-clockwise around the Triangle. Either way you miss none of the highlights. Spiced with a variety of scenery and activity, it is well worth while to plan your tour ahead for the maximum of vacation pleasure. You can even include Alaska in your three weeks' vacation, if you live in the East; a fortnight will suffice if you live on the Pacific Coast!

MOUNT ROBSON PARK

In British Columbia

This beautiful and outstanding scenic area in the heart of the Canadian Rockies contains over 800 sq. miles of awe inspiring grandeur directly adjoining America's largest mountain playground, Jasper National Park.

Dominating this British Columbia forest reserve is the magnificent Mount Robson, the King of the Rockies, rearing its imponderable mass 12,972 feet above sea level. Unforgettable is the picture; indescribable the thrill the scene produces.

The route to it from Mount Robson Station, by way of the Grand Forks River, lovely Lake Kinney, and the Valley of a Thousand Falls, will tax the most ample vocabulary to describe. Every mile of the winding way opens up new vistas and brings within the range of vision new glories in hanging glaciers, rock walls, silver streams tumbling from dizzy heights, and more distant peaks.

The Robson Glacier and the ice-filled basin from which it flows extend back from the Pass summit for some five miles along the eastern flank of the mountain and constitute the Robson Cirque. The wonderful creations of ice and snow accumulated there make the area one of the wonders of the Canadian Rockies, and its fame has gone far and wide. The massif with its glaciers and glacial lakes covers an area of over thirty square miles and measures three miles through at the base. It rises one and a half miles into the air above the summit of the pass.

Much is expected of Mount Robson. It is the loftiest peak in the Canadian Rockies; it has been scaled only a few times in its tremendous history. Its beauty of form, its magnificent armour of ice, its vast solidity—which indeed entitles it to stand with Gibraltar as a symbol of towering strength and solidity—makes it supreme among mountain tops.

The easy way to reach Mount Robson Park is by Canadian National services. The deluxe through daily train, The Continental Limited, between Montreal, Toronto, Jasper, Mount Robson and Vancouver, carries all-steel, air-conditioned equipment. Through sleeping cars from St. Paul routing via Winnipeg bring United States mid-west points within two days' journey of the Canadian Rockies.

Accommodation in Mount Robson Park

Hargreaves Bros. maintain a "Dude Ranch" at Mount Robson and Emperor stations and a bungalow camp at Berg Lake,

At the foot of Mount Robson is Berg Lake, altitude 5,500 feet, two miles long and a mile wide. This lake is dotted with icebergs, which are continually breaking away from the Tumbling Glacier.

as well as a complete outfit of sure-footed mountain horses and capable guides to handle the trail riders over miles of established trails into beautiful scenic areas.

"Mount Robson Dude Ranch"

The Mount Robson Dude Ranch, the buildings of which are of log construction, is the centre or starting point for all activities in the Mount Robson area. This Ranch is open June 15 to Sept. 15 each year.

The atmosphere of the Ranch is informal and restful. The products of the garden and dairy, together with the home cooking and the magnificent scenery, leave little to be desired.

Accommodation consists of: Main building, containing kitchen and dining room, bedrooms and bathroom; heated sleeping cabin with bedrooms and sitting room; special heated cabin with two bedrooms, sitting room and private bathroom.

Mount Robson is a climb to challenge the most intrepid mountaineer.

The Trip to Berg Lake

One of the finest scenic trail trips in the Rockies is from Mount Robson "Dude Ranch" to Berg Lake, a distance of 16 miles, four of which are covered by automobile and twelve by saddle horse. From the cedar groves through which the trail runs, across the canyon of the Fraser River, up the banks of the Grand Fork River, which roars along over rapids and cascades to that placid sheet of water, Kinney Lake, the visitor is constantly being presented with totally different aspects of Mount Robson. From Kinney Lake the trail enters the Valley of a Thousand Falls, whose walls reach up for 6,700 feet, with waterfalls cascading down them all the way along. Over the "Flying Trestle," past White Falls, Falls of the Pool, and Emperor Falls, the last of which is visible from many points on the trail, and to the shores of Berg Lake, one is greeted by new and ever-changing scenes with each turn of the trail.

In the past it is just possible this saddle trip to Berg Lake has been regarded as one too strenuous or difficult, or as taking up more time than can be spared. The following illustrates how quickly and comfortably this scenic trail trip can be made. Guests arriving either from the east or west on Canadian National trains may leave Mount Robson Bungalow Camp immediately on arrival and arrive at Berg Lake Bungalow Camp in time for evening dinner. This is possible by using motor car for the first four miles, or almost to Kinney Lake and then saddle horse for the remaining twelve miles to Berg Lake, the entire journey being made in daylight. If necessary, the return trip can be made under the same conditions, arriving Mount Robson station in time to make outgoing trains the next day.

This scenic trail is a photographer's Paradise. Mr. Hamilton Jones, of Buffalo, filmed it in color and won the first World's Amateur Motion Picture Championship with it in 1937.

Berg Lake Bungalow Camp

Berg Lake Bungalow Camp is located 5,500 feet above sea level on the shore of Berg Lake and directly opposite one of the few tumbling glaciers in the Rockies. Here good food and comfortable accommodation are available. Boating on Berg

Lake, hiking over Robson and Coleman Glaciers, many mountain climbs and hiking or saddle trips to beautiful areas high up in the passes are all possible.

For those desiring to visit Berg Lake Bungalow Camp who are not interested in foregoing Tours Nos 1, 2 and 3 covering inclusive features the regular rate of $20.00 covering car and saddle horse (transportation only) Mount Robson to Berg Lake and return is available.

Rates at Berg Lake Bungalow Camp is $5.00 per day or $30.00 per week per person. American Plan.

Special accommodation and rates for large parties arranged on application.

JASPER

of infinite

One of the world's most beautiful playgrounds — Spring, Summer, Fall or Winter. Jasper National Park has everything. Mountains, rivers, lakes, forests, glaciers and scenic beauty, and splendor unsurpassed. Four thousand, two hundred square miles in extent — the largest National Park on the Continent.

In addition to being a National Park, this area is a game preserve and wild life roam its trails in never-ending search for food, in a sense of security and freedom. Immediately outside the confines of the Park is located a big game country which attracts hunters from all parts of the world. And they all return home with excellent specimens of Bighorn, Sheep, Mountain Goat, Caribou, Deer, Elk and Bear.

Jasper National Park is perhaps better known as a summer resort. Three miles from the town of Jasper is located the famous Jasper Park Lodge, with its comfortable cottages bordering the shore of sparkling Lac Beauvert. Here, the guest has a dull moment only when it is desired. There is so much to do. Fishing, trail riding, walking, swimming, boating, canoeing and dancing. Then there is tennis on specially made shale courts. Golf? What a word at Jasper! One of the greatest championship courses known to man or woman. Splendidly maintained with velvety fairways and perfect greens, it is an enjoyable test of golf for man or woman, young or old, and low or high handicapper. The annual Golf Tournament in early September, representing, as it does, the grand finale of the season's activities at Jasper Park Lodge, has now become an institution and ranks as the outstanding annual golfing event in the Pacific Northwest.

A fleet of well-kept and carefully-driven automobiles is on hand at the Lodge for the convenience of the guests, and a series of most interesting motor drives is available daily. These drives include trips to Miette Hot Springs; Maligne Canyon; Medicine Lake, Pyramid Lake, Mount Edith Cavell and other points of scenic interest. An outstanding feature is the famous Columbia Icefield drive which attains its spectacular climax, 75 miles distant from Jasper, at the foot of the Athabaska glacier. Here, facing Mount Athabaska, is the New Columbia Icefield chalet.

Jasper is now the photographers' paradise — for professional and amateur. One does not have to go far from the Main Lodge to get pictures of Mule Deer browsing on the grass and amid the flower beds in the Lodge grounds; or to see a group of playful bears wrestling on the nearby fairway. The glorious coloring of the flowers stands out in marked relief against the snowcapped peaks in the background, and adds greatly to the delight of the color movie fan.

But Jasper now has a strong appeal during the winter, as well as summer. It is rapidly becoming known for the enjoyment its extensive trails and fast hills offer to the skier. Though Jasper Park Lodge is closed in the winter, there are a number of comfortable all-year-round hotels in the town of Jasper. Ski camps are also operated at Maligne Lake and other points; and winter visitors make these their headquarters when they are off on a skiing or snowshoe trip.

Jasper has a background of historical romance as true as it is interesting. Such explorers as Jasper Hawse, Gabriel Fran- chere, David Thomp- son and a host of others plodded their way through the area in the early days.

First Side of the Triangle

When the Canadian National train leaves Jasper on its five hundred and thirty-five mile trip to Vancouver it climbs up to the Yellowhead Pass and the Continental Divide. Here, where Alberta meets British Columbia, the waters are parted, some to travel north to the Arctic, some to drop to the Pacific.

About 45 miles from Jasper is Red Pass Junction, the point of divergence for the two railway lines, one going up to Prince Rupert and the other down to Vancouver. They remain in sight of each other until Mount Robson is reached.

After Robson, the next great single spectacle is Pyramid Falls, thundering down three hundred feet, spreading out, in a shower of mist and rainbows, and hurtling itself almost on the railway track.

Hell's Gate on the Thompson is another sight the traveller never fails to appreciate. Eight miles of riotous turbulent water, chained between narrow rock walls, suddenly find freedom here.

En route is Kamloops, the centre of dozens of lakes, all famed fishing waters with lodges catering especially to anglers. Kamloops is also the gateway to the Okanagan Valley.

The more famous Hell's Gate is in the Fraser Canyon. This Canyon, south of Boston Bar, has an average depth of two hundred and fifty feet. At Hell's Gate, the waters of the mighty Fraser are forced into a channel no more than a hundred feet wide, and they lash and swirl with a dizzying speed and terrific force.

Beyond the Canyon, the Fraser runs down to the ocean, large and free, with its strength increased rather than abated, but quieter mood. It spreads out to make way for shipping at New Westminster. Now comes the city and the sea.

VANCOUVER — — VICTORIA

At Vancouver, you will want to make your headquarters in the new Hotel Vancouver offering the finest accommodation on the Pacific Coast. Its smart appointments and many social conveniences, all carried out in the simple, modern manner, will make your stay as exciting as a "first night" performance.

From its commanding Panorama Roof you have an unsurpassed view in every direction. There is the busy harbour and, behind it, the timbered slopes of the North Shore mountains rising up to rocky crests! There is Stanley Park in the heart of the city, a thousand acres of glorious forest, the boast of all Vancouver.

Below you lies the throbbing heart of the city, a gay, cosmopolitan city at one of the world's crossroads. It has its smart shops and theatres, its Chinatown, its Japanese quarter, its colony of black-bearded, turbaned Hindus!

All summer long attractive, coastwise steamers sail on day-long trips through adjacent waters.

Victoria

Victoria, "A Charming Bit of Old England," is a delight to the summer visitor because of its serene atmosphere.

Victoria is a "flower city." You are quick to notice its homes with their well-tailored lawns, spreading, leafy trees, neatly trimmed hedges and profusion of bloom. Victoria, too, boasts its scenic drives. The famed Butchart Gardens are the showplace of the Pacific Coast, 16 acres of glorious colour, a fairyland woven from flowers, shrubs, trees, streams and lawns. The Malahat Drive, too, is spectacular with its pastoral scenery and marvellous vistas of forest and stream.

From July to September the bays and inlets of Vancouver Island are alive with salmon. Sea fishing is always spectacular, of course; but there is also fine stream fishing, white-water angling that will delight the fly expert.

Vancouver Island is indeed Treasure Island and Victoria its fitting capital!

The second leg of the triangle is from Vancouver to Prince Rupert—a 540 mile sail on a Canadian National coastal liner in a smooth narrow channel of the Pacific coast with mountains guarding either side.

Cruise in comfort on the famed Inside Passage

• The second side of the Triangle Route

The route from Vancouver to Prince Rupert is a smooth sea voyage. To starboard lies the mainland and to larboard a long, broken, irregular chain of islands. The only open sea comes when Queen Charlotte Sound is crossed in less than two hours. A voyage, with the sea-gulls wheeling in the breeze, with a keen, salt wind to whip up an appetite for the abundance of ship's fare, with sports and long walks around the deck and dancing at night—such is the cruise between Vancouver and Prince Rupert, B.C.

Prince Rupert

With its parks and their splendid Haida totem poles, one of the world's largest cold storage plants and its wharves with their sturdy fishing craft at anchor, there is ample to see and do at Prince Rupert. Curio and souvenir hunters will find unique shops carrying a varied assortment of native Indian work and local souvenirs. Then, too, there is the Museum which contains a good collection of articles of interest.

TO ALASKA

At Prince Rupert there is an opportunity to make a side trip to Alaska in only six days' additional time, for Prince Rupert lies at the Alaska border, with Skagway only three days away by boat. Canadian National's popular Alaska steamers (all outside rooms) ply from Vancouver, and if preferred the Alaska journey may be commenced there.

(12)

Prince Rupert, B.C.

Third side of the Triangle Route

The route from Prince Rupert to Jasper lies through a most interesting part of the country. No less than five extensive valleys are traversed. They are, in order, the Skeena, the Bulkley, the Endako, the Nechako, and the Fraser. Each are rich in scenic charm and beauty, and each has its own peculiar outstanding features.

Following the mountain-guarded Skeena, the train passes quaint fishing villages and canneries perched on piling high above the water. At Kitwanga is the site of a most interesting Indian village. Here, towering 25 to 30 feet above the surrounding dwellings are a number of totem poles which heads of families erected in the past to record their origin and prowess.

Leaving Hazelton, the valley of the Bulkley River is entered. The most memorable spectacle in the valley is Bulkley Gate, which the waters of the river hewed out, a solid rock eight feet thick. Ages ago nature built the huge rock wall blocking the valley. Today her greatest sculptor is busy with relentless force cutting the gate deeper and wider.

Totems at Kitwanga, B.C.

Bulkley Gate

The northern part of Tweedsmuir Park is reached from Burns Lake, where a motor road leads to Ootsa Lake—the first stage of the journey for those entering the Park from its northern portal and the grand finale for those who come in from the south, of which Bella Coola is the recognized gateway. Tweedsmuir Park, of 5,000 square miles, contains some of the loveliest lakes, rivers and mountains on the continent.

Leaving McBride, lofty majestic mountains, standing as worthy monuments to five great leaders, greet the eye. These are Mt. Sir John Abbott; Mt. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mt. Sir John Thompson; Mt. Stanley Baldwin and Mt. Sir Mackenzie Bowell. Then into view comes Mount Robson, and, in a few hours the train glides to a stop at Jasper, the end and the beginning of the great Triangle.
