Scenic Splendour

The Canadian National Railways take you through fields of daisies and many a picturesque fishing village, down along the shore of the Bay of Chaleur, to Gaspé, land's end of Quebec and one of the most colorful spots a traveller could wish to see . . . . Supposing you stop off at Percé . . . . You will agree it is headquarters for scenery . . . . Red roads and green forests and flowery meadows rising in steep slopes from the open sea . . . . and everything focusses on the famous Pierced Rock, anchored just off the shore . . . . You will want to see it from every angle, from the top of Mount Ste. Anne, from the village streets . . . . You will want to cruise around it in a motor launch, on your way to Bonaventure Island and its whirring population of gulls, gannets, puffins and cormorants . . . . You will want to see its changing colors in the sun and as the moon comes up over its prow . . . . You will be fascinated by the life of Percé . . . . the fishermen coming in with their cod, as they have done for generations . . . . You will bathe in the invigorating sea, and hike — it is a wonderful country for short strolls and long hikes — and if you go right around the peninsula by automobile you will add thrill to thrill.
