MOTHER OF RIVERS

COVERING more than 110 square miles, the Columbia Icefield is the largest and most impressive body of ice between the Poles. Its lofty peaks tower 11,000 and 12,000 feet and from its massive glaciers spring streams that swell into mighty rivers carrying fertility to a vast terrain and pouring into three oceans. You reach it by motor highway from Jasper and if you want to spend a while there, summer skiing, for instance . . . January in June . . . you will find a pleasant chalet at the foot of Athabaska Glacier.
