

Come by Canadian National and see for yourself. small, but their pleasure potential is unlimited. from points in Canada and the United States. The Atlantic Provinces are the latest conveniences are at your service in some of North America's oldest regions. Your Canadian National representative will arrange easy travel connections. Past and present blend perfectly here. Modern cities stand in historic settings: the Confederation Chamber, where the notion of Canadian nationhood originated. Not far away is Moncton, centre of Sydney's steel plant and the ruined ramparts of Liverpool; Scottish crofters from the Highlands and the Hebrides, Germans from Hanover built a gabled town on Nova Scotia's south shore and named it Lunenburg. There were many strains of settlers. Like the French from Normandy and Brittany, whose speech is still spoken here. There were Basques and Elizabethans; Englishmen from London and Liverpool; Scottish crofters from the Highlands and the Hebrides, Germans from Hanover built a gabled town on Nova Scotia's south shore and named it Lunenburg. Generations ago the sea carried settlers here, thirteenth-century Norsemen rowed Viking galleys bally... nights are cucumber cool in these provinces by the sea. Fertile Annapolis Valley. Summer days are Highlands National Park. They billow off the Bay of Fundy and tumble down the Prince Edward Island beach, or boating on Cape Breton's sparkling Bras d'Or Lakes. It smacks of fun and relaxation too! Like baking on a surf-splashed pier. Product stacked for export on a Saint John pier. It echoes from the staccato sort of a diesel-powered coastal schooner churning wake of an ocean liner steaming out of Halifax, a major CNR Atlantic terminus. You'll sense a maritime atmosphere in the shrill cry of seagulls circling over the land on which they live. Its touch is everywhere. or to all four provinces—you're always near the ocean. Its presence has seeped into the lives of the people... Irresistible tides have even wrought When CNR takes you to New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia or Newfoundland—Everywhere these features blend in a setting that is truly maritime. pictures appeal—the timeless spell of the sea and the thriving tempo of progressive cities; the serenity of summer landscapes and the comforts of modern living.

Land of Contrast

THE ATLANTIC PROVINCES have many tourist attractions... more than appear here. Those listed below are a sampling of the sights you will see in this romantic region. Consult CNR now about your visit to this maritime vacationland.

- Visit Halifax, Capital of "New Scotland". See Citadel Hill with its Old Town Clock, the Public Gardens and the Northwest Arm. Stay at The Nova Scotian, a CNR hotel of distinction.
- Photographers and painters portray the marine beauty of Peggy's Cove, 15 miles south of Halifax.
- Annapolis Valley, locale of Longfellow's poem "Evangeline", is a tourist attraction. Visit Evangeline Park at Grand Pre.
- The Alexander Graham Bell Museum at Baddeck overlooks Cape Breton Island's beautiful Bras d'Or Lakes.
- The winding Cabot Trail is one of North America's most scenic coastal drives.
- The ferry "Bluenose" sails in regular service between Yarmouth, N.S., and Bar Harbor, Maine.
- Colorful Highland Games are staged every summer in Antigonish and on Cape Breton Island.
- At Hearst's Content, Trinity Bay, the world's first trans-Atlantic cable reached North America in 1866.
- Canada's smallest province is famous for summer harness horse racing and Old Home Week celebrations.
- The most picturesque place names in North America are here. Examples are: Come-by-Chance, Galt Topkats, Sandy, salt water beaches (average summer water temperature 70°) in this "Garden of the Gulf", are among Canada's best and easy to reach.
- See the site of the novel "Anne of Green Gables", in P.E.I. National Park.
- Photographers and painters find plenty of picturesque coves, inlets and countryside to capture on film or canvas.
- Make your vacation centre at CNR's Charlottetown Hotel in Charlottetown.
- Regions, bear and moose roam the province's wildlife.

NEW BRUNSWICK ...

- Fishing is excellent on the Miramichi and Restigouche rivers. Game is plentiful, too, in this province.
- Twice a day, a wall of water pours up the Peticodiac River at Moncton. This phenomenon is the Tidal Bore.
- Near Moncton is Magnetic Hill, one of Mother Nature's optical illusions.
- Saint John is one of Canada's major Atlantic ports. Nearby are renowned Reversing Falls.
- Fredrickton is the provincial Capital and home of the University of New Brunswick.
- The Bay of Fundy, between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, has the highest tides in the world.
- You'll find miles of sunny, sandy beaches along Long Brunswick's shoreline.
