ALASKA

& British Columbia Coast Service

MOUNTAIN walls rising sheer above sparkling seas, sprawling glaciers gleaming silver and rose and green, myriads of wooded islands, oddest of Indian tribes, totem poles, ceremonial masks, salmon canneries, whaling stations, queer old settlements, vivid reminders of the frenzied gold-rush days, the flower-gardens of Skagway, the beauty of the long Alaska twilights, opportunities to fish and hunt, the luxury of the accommodations on board yachtlike ships; these are features of the 2,000-mile, 9-day water journey along the magnificent British Columbia Coast from Vancouver and Victoria to Alaska and back.

Twice a week in summer, and at regular intervals in the winter months, the famous Canadian Pacific "Princess" steamships leave Vancouver and Victoria on this most fascinating of America's water journeys.
