

The

LAST FRONTIER...

JUST as Canadian Pacific's steel rails once opened up the West, so, today, sleek silver planes bearing the insignia of Canadian Pacific Air Lines are rolling back the map of Canada's new North, the world's last great frontier.

Regular routes flown by Canadian Pacific's large fleet of modern planes reach Labrador, the Northwest Territories, Yukon, Alaska and the Arctic. Today, these northern air routes are vital links in the continent's defence chain and form part of the aerial supply paths across the "Roof-of-the-World" to our allies in Asia—and beyond.

The company is working closely with the Governments of Canada and the United States to provide air transport to meet essential war needs. Canadian Pacific planes played a major role in the construction of the Alaska Highway and are daily carrying an ever-increasing volume of mail to the troops, equipment and supplies to contractors engaged on far northern defence projects, and moving large numbers of priority passengers engaged on war business. More than 90% of the total traffic handled is connected with the war effort.

When victory is won Canadian Pacific Air Lines will be ready to assist in the further development of Canada's great natural resources and to provide air services for the world in peacetime.
