Canadian Indian

The strong character evidenced in Nina Crumrine's portrait of this dignified member of the Stoney Tribe typifies the Indians encountered by visitors to the Canadian Rockies.

Throughout the Canadian Pacific holiday area—which includes Banff Springs Hotel, Chateau Lake Louise, Emerald Lake and the mountain lodges at Wapta, Yoho, Moraine Lake and Lake O'Hara—place names, such as Sun Dance Canyon, Lake Minnewanka, Takakkaw Falls, are reminders of the days when the tribes roamed at will.

Now, from their Reservation at Morley, Alta., the Stoneys ride 40 miles to Banff each July to hold their tribal sports. "Indian Days at Banff", when chiefs, braves, squaws, and even papooses wear their traditional colourful clothes, attracts artists, historians and tourists. Each day is packed with interesting parades, chuck-waggon races, roping and riding contests and other displays of skill.
