

The Palliser, 481 rooms —
all with bath, in the heart of the range and oil lands of the foothills of the Canadian Rockies,
for all its pioneer surroundings
is an outstanding metropolitan hotel.

Centrally located as a business headquarters The Palliser is equally accessible to the great vacation areas in Banff National Park . . . big game hunting in territory restricted only by conservational game laws . . . and to the stock ranches and irrigated farm lands of the Canadian West.

Recreation Roundup

"Stampede" is a magic word in Calgary! Since 'way back the annual Calgary Stampede has been high on the list of North American rodeos . . . more recently "Calgary Stampeders" have carried the name of the western city to famous football stadiums.

Every July, The Palliser . . . focal point of "The Stampede City" . . . helps recall the romantic past when Stampede madness grips the city. Staid businessmen don 10-gallon hats and high-heeled boots . . . where cowboys and cowgirls gay with woolly "chaps" or fringed buckskin skirts, jangle spurs and sport coloured neckerchiefs . . . mingle on decorated streets with bronco-busters, chiefs, braves and squaws . . . in Stampede Week!

Other weeks see other activities . . . golf, riding, fishing, sight-seeing—in such places as Banff . . . Lake Louise . . . the Columbia Ice-fields . . . the Duke of Windsor's E. P. Ranch . . . Sarcee Indian Reserve . . . even to mammoth reproductions of prehistoric fauna in the city park. In season the remoter mountain areas offer sportsmen a choice of grizzly, black and brown bear, bighorn sheep, mountain goat, antelope, elk (wapiti), caribou—even moose. Anglers count on Dolly Varden, cutthroat, lake, and rainbow trout. Outfitters in Calgary supply guides and make arrangements for trips.

Attractive, spacious, friendly, The Lobby

The Palliser

Named for a famous Canadian pioneer, The Palliser reflects the cosmopolitan atmosphere of this bustling city known by several nicknames . . . "Foothills City" . . . "Oil Metropolis" . . . "Stampede City". Every room with bath, many with television, every room outside, Canadian Pacific cuisine and service . . . that's The Palliser!

Three restaurants offer a la carte or combination meals; the popular Range Room, Coffee Shop and the fabulous Penthouse Lounge with its 60-mile views. For conventions or meetings, a ballroom that seats 400, The Palliser Room for a gathering of 800, private dining rooms and committee rooms. The Penthouse Lounge and Range Room are fully licensed.

The Palliser

Accommodation at The Palliser runs the gamut of purse and taste from single rooms through doubles, bed-sitting-rooms to suites. Room service is deft, courteous and prompt. Family Plan rates are available the year round. The Palliser is close to the Canadian Pacific station, and baggage transfer rates are reasonable. The Trans-Canada and North-South highways serve Calgary. There is good train service to Edmonton and the south. Trans-continental air services call at Calgary airport.

Well-engineered highways open one of the world's most famous mountain areas to Palliser visitors. One-day trips include the Bow River Valley . . . Park Entrance — The Gap — Morley Reserve — Banff — Lake Minnewanka; Upper Bow River . . . Johnson's Canyon — Valley of the Ten Peaks — Lake Louise — The Great Divide — Field — Emerald Lake. A longer, but very rewarding trip takes in the magnificent scenic highway to the Columbia Icefield. Modern department stores tempt lady visitors with well-dressed windows.

Golfers can enjoy the privileges of affiliated clubs, the courtesy of the Calgary Country Club, on payment of green fees with card of introduction from the hotel manager; or the Calgary Municipal course. There is indoor swimming at the Crystal Pool, outdoors at Bowness Park. Prince's Island and Calgary Tennis Clubs are handy for visitors.

High above Calgary — The Penthouse Lounge

Thick, juicy, rare as the range itself, roast beef at The Palliser is a dish to remember. Of course the guest is king . . . so if you want it medium, well done, an outside cut, with the rib or without, order accordingly.

A corner of the Range Room

Enjoy your favourite haut cuisine . . . but don't visit The Palliser without enjoying Prime Canadian Beef . . . hung just right . . . cooked just right . . . garnished just right . . . truly a dish to remember!

A typical Palliser bedroom

Brightness, airiness, modernity, comfort . . . these are the watchwords of the house-keeping department of The Palliser. The typical bedroom has, of course, all the usual facilities, plenty of drawer space, large wardrobe closet, private bath — everything you expect. Bed-sitting rooms and suites lay special emphasis on spacious daytime living in addition to the sleeping comfort and traditional service noted throughout the chain of Canadian Pacific hotels from sea to sea. Television is a feature of many rooms.
