Past such rugged giants as Mt. Stephen runs the Canadian Pacific transcontinental route. Mt. Stephen, 10,485 feet in height, is named after George Stephen, later Lord Mount Stephen, first President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

WHEREVER you travel on the Canadian Pacific, you will find the same desire to maintain that excellence of service for which the Company has been noted for over forty years. The seemingly effortless perfection of Canadian Pacific service is simply an infinite capacity for taking pains.

THE SPIRAL TUNNELS

Considered as among the most notable engineering feats in the world, the Spiral Tunnels were constructed by engineers of Canadian Pacific to reduce the gradient between the Great Divide and Field. Prior to their construction the gradient was 4.5 per cent; it is now 2.2 per cent.

Going west the track enters the first tunnel under Cathedral Mountain, 3,206 feet in length, turns 234 degrees of a circle, and, passing under itself, emerges 48 feet lower.

The track then turns easterly and, crossing the river, enters the second tunnel, 2,890 feet long, under Mount Ogden. Performing a similar evolution, it emerges 45 feet lower and continues westward to Field.

If the train is run in two sections, passengers in one section are able to see the other section either above them or below them.
