Surf and sand... Lakes and mountains... Western hospitality

Nature has been lavish with Oregon's coast country. Forested headlands, sparkling inland lakes, towering peaks hug the narrow land between the Pacific and the mountains of the Coast Range. If you love the awesome aspects of the sea, you'll revel in the sights to be seen, the things to do, in friendly Oregon.

Swing into fun for the whole family on Oregon's tranquil beaches. Sunny weather, yet comfortably cool.

Modern motels, luxury seaside resorts, intermingle with equally gracious state parks and camping areas. The choice is yours along Oregon's coast.

Wilderness meets the ocean frequently on the Oregon coast. Deep forests push to the sea. Steep bluffs give views of unbounded beauty.

Rolling sand dunes, created by offshore winds, offer unreal seclusion, delightful swimming. One of the varied pleasures of this unique coast.

Historic Astor column at Astoria portrays the pioneer development of this vibrant land. A climb to the top gives a gull's eye view of the mighty Columbia river joining the sea.

ever-changing seashore*

Bountiful beauty brands these Beaver State beaches...

NORTHERN COAST. Great sweeps of unswerving beaches... forests edging to the booming ocean... snag-covered crests. Uncommon coastal variety marks the route from Astoria to Newport.

CENTRAL COAST. A land of fascinating contrasts. Gnarled, rocky points jutting into the sea... vast and mysteriously desolate dune country... protected, curving beaches — with trails into the back country revealing more sights of violent splendor. Breathtaking panoramas from Newport to Bandon.

SOUTHERN COAST. Peacefully quiet vistas mark this lonely stretch of weathered coast. Offshore, gaunt and wave-battered rocks silently battle towering breakers. Along the entire 400 miles — from Astoria to Brookings — you'll enjoy modern accommodations, a profusion of camping and picnicking spots.

Varied pleasures abound along the coast of this young, vigorous state

Rough it outdoors in Oregon's famed air-conditioned climate. Relax at restful beach resorts. Swim, fish, hike, beachcomb, golf — Oregon's delightful coastline offers uncrowded pleasures for every taste, at prices to fit any vacation budget.

Wet your line with confidence in surf, lake, stream or deep sea. Husky salmon, battling trout wait to welcome you.

Smooth sand, gentle surf and the broken hulk of the Peter Iredale grace this spacious public beach. Only 23 miles of these playgrounds are privately owned.
