Denver's Civic Center

The mile high steps of Colorado's gold-domed State Capitol commands a view unique in any city. Spreading out below is Denver's famous Civic Center with its Greek Theatre, Public Library and the $5,000,000 white marble Municipal Building . . . against a backdrop of the snow-tipped front range peaks of the Colorado Rockies.

Denver, the capital of Colorado, has grown from a pioneer settlement of gold-seeking 56'ers into a city of 400,000, known as the "Little Capital of the United States," second only to Washington, D. C., in the number of government offices.

Denver's fame as the playground of America came from its invigorating climate and its location in the heart of the Rockies. The city itself with its thirty-five beautiful parks and variety of sports and recreational activities is a delightful vacation spot.

Now the energies and activities of the Friendly City in the Sky are devoted to the successful prosecution of the war. One-third of its 600 manufacturing plants are engaged in war production. Instead of carrying vacationers into nearby Rocky Mountain wonderlands to fish and ride horseback thru the pines, the railroads are transporting our armed forces and war materiel.

On the outskirts of the city are Lowry and Buckley Fields, units of the U.S. Army Air Forces, Fort Logan which is becoming a convalescent center, and Fitzsimons Hospital, specializing in the treatment of tuberculosis.

But, although Denver has gone to war, her charms as a vacation center remain for your enjoyment when Victory is won. The high altitude is dry and exhilarating. The sun shines on an average of 304 days a year. Winters are mild. Summers are cool and exhilarating.

Denver is unique among cities for its Mountain Parks system ... a chain of some thirty mountain parks consisting of 25,000 acres of land, owned and maintained by the City of Denver. Broad boulevards connecting the parks afford thrilling trips past soaring peaks, thru rugged, colorful canyons, beside clear, rushing mountain streams. Shelter houses, camp sites and open fireplaces invite you to stop and enjoy the Rockies.

A favorite trip is the historic Prospector's Trail leading to Central City, once the "richest square mile on earth" . . . the tomb of Buffalo Bill Cody on Lookout Mountain . . . the great natural open-air Theatre of the Red Rocks, seating 9,000 . . . on to the 14,260-foot summit of Mount Evans over the world's highest auto highway.

With the completion, in 1934, of the Dotsero Cutoff, the famous Moffat Tunnel Route of the Rio Grande railroad was established, placing Denver on the direct central transcontinental line connecting the East and West and aiding in her development as the commercial, manufacturing and distribution center of the Rocky Mountain west. This route and Rio Grande's renowned Royal Gorge Route, afford two scenic ways thru the Rockies. Plan your Victory trips to go one way and return the other, enjoying the majestic grandeur of the mountains as you travel.
