"There goes my business partner"

"In serving this section, Southern Pacific connects my farm with every market . . . every town and city . . . in the entire United States. If it weren't for the railroad, I would have little more than a local market for my crop. That's why I say Southern Pacific is a working partner in my business." Besides hauling his products and delivering his supplies, Southern Pacific, together with other railroads, work for the farmer in many other ways . . . paying local taxes, buying much of their supplies locally, and employing local people . . . all of which supports every community they serve. That's why thoughtful American citizens want to be sure the railroads are given a fair chance to compete on an even basis with other forms of transportation in this country.
