

The University of Nebraska, located at Lincoln, the state capital, was chartered by an act of the state legislature on February 15, 1869. The University consists of a Junior Division; ten colleges—Agriculture, Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Dentistry, Engineering, Graduate, Law, Medicine, Pharmacy and Teachers; four schools—Fine Arts, Social Work (graduate), Journalism, and Nursing; and the two Divisions of Conservation and Survey and University Extension.

The city campus in Lincoln proper occupies an area of more than 75 acres. The Agriculture College campus, of 320 acres, lies 2½ miles northeast of the city campus. The agronomy farm, of 1,400 acres, lies 3 miles east of this campus. At Omaha, metropolis of Nebraska, is the Medical College and School of Nursing. With approximately 10,000 students of collegiate rank in full-time attendance, and approximately 20,000 enrolled in all classifications, and a faculty of more than 500, the University of Nebraska ranks among the first thirty in size in the United States, and fourteenth among state universities.

A member of the Big Seven conference in intercollegiate athletics, the "Cornhuskers" have a nationwide reputation for athletic teams of championship calibre. Memorial Stadium on the campus at Lincoln seats 40,000 and is one of the largest in the Middle West.

A progressive research program, devoted primarily to the needs and problems of the farmer and stock raiser, is carried on. In countless other ways the University continues to be a valuable contributor to the economic and educational welfare of all of the people of Nebraska.
