

Midland College, so named because of its location near the geographic center of the country, was founded by the General Synod Lutheran Church. The first term opened in September of 1887 in Atchison, Kans., with four instructors and 17 students. In 1919 when the United Lutheran Church in America was formed, the college was moved to Fremont, Nebr., to be nearer the center of the church's territory.

Original objectives of the college were the training of teachers and ministers, but Midland now is a liberal arts college offering four degrees and promoting the educational growth of its students under the influence of a wholesome Christian environment. Annual enrollment is approximately 500 students.

The campus, an eleven-acre tract, is located in the heart of Fremont's residential section and contains seven buildings. The Observatory houses the state's second largest refractor telescope. Fremont has been named the Pathfinder City after John C. Fremont, famed western explorer and statesman. With a population of 16,000, it is known as the Convention City and is the center of the state's hybrid seed industry. Located on the Platte River, Fremont is surrounded by fertile farm lands. Excellent fishing and swimming facilities are found at the scenic State Lakes just west of the city.
