

One of the most beautiful rivers in all the world is the Columbia River, which forms the boundary, for the most part, between Oregon and Washington. Discovered in May, 1792 by an American trader and sea captain, Robert Gray of Boston, it was named by him after his ship the "Columbia," the first vessel to anchor in its inland waters.

The Union Pacific-Milwaukee Road trains skirt the Columbia River for over two hundred miles. Through the verdant Columbia River Valley you travel past the foot of sheer walls one moment; next the sweeping breast of the river lies before you. Mile after mile your train threads along the river, now in the shadows of soaring cliffs, then past garden-like islands, foaming cataracts and waterfalls.

The history and development of the entire Pacific Northwest has been closely linked with this sometimes calm, sometimes angry waterway. However, the last chapter in this story has not been written, for the mighty Columbia will continue down through the ages to exert a powerful influence on the welfare of the territory it drains.
