

Yellowstone, with two and a quarter million acres, is the largest of the National Parks, occupying the entire northwest corner of Wyoming and portions of Idaho and Montana.

Among the hundreds of natural wonders found there are the geysers, Old Faithful being the most famous. Every 60 to 80 minutes an immense column of hissing, boiling water soars gracefully to a height of 120 feet or more. The Grand Canyon of Yellowstone filled with color, the roar of waterfalls, and a sense of eternity is one of the truly great wonders of the West. Some of the other intriguing sights are the bubbling paint pots, Firehole and Madison Rivers, and Yellowstone Lake. Everywhere, of course, are those friendly, comical beggars, the famous Yellowstone bears.

The Yellowstone Park and Transportation Company maintains excellent hotels, lodges, and cabin accommodations at Old Faithful, Lake, Canyon Village, and Mammoth, and provides the bus service for Yellowstone Park tours.

Thousands of Union Pacific travelers visit Yellowstone and nearby Grand Teton National Park annually as complete vacations, but they can also be seen on a short sidetrip on your way to or from the Pacific Northwest.
